STELLA,
A CHAMPION'S
BIRTH

FRENCH MANUFACTURING

For almost a century, Stella's football tables have been manufactured in France. They bear the values of tradition, craftsmanship and shared memories.

Auguste Sarrault, the first president of the Automatics French Federation, founded Stella in 1928. He gave the newly founded company his sweet daughter's name. Then, he invented the first ever known football table. Stella Champion's legend is born.

Since the very first football tables, two singularities arose. On the one hand, you can block the balls with players' heads. On the other hand, you can have the balls jump on the field baseboards. Stella has built its popularity on these two specificities it is proud of.

The first Stella football table was composed of its famous 15mm bars, his vertical legs and its yellow & red colors. In the 70s, the Champion model that we know as of today arose and had a great success with the boat-like cabinet. A design that has become timeless since then.

DID YOU KNOW THAT?

The first french football table championship were launched in the early 50s and have been exclusively played on Stella's football tables. It has been a great opportunity to spread Stella's rich game full of variations and possibilities. For the bigger pleasure of the fans.

BRING OUT THE BIG GAME

With its big size players and its inclined field baseboards, Stella's football tables offer an enriched game full of sensations: lobbed balls, head controls and shots...etc. So many opportunities to win the game.

A close-up, high-angle photograph of a vintage Stella Champion pinball machine. The machine is dark-colored with prominent chrome-plated metal rods and components. Several circular medallions with the words "STELLA" and "CHAMPION" are visible. The game board features a basketball court layout with white lines on a dark background. Miniature figures of players in black and white uniforms are positioned on the rods. In the lower-left foreground, a metal tray holds three white balls and one brown ball, with a star-shaped logo next to it. The overall aesthetic is classic and nostalgic.
